

The American Federationist INDEX 1966

As 1966 opened, the merged AFL-CIO entered its second decade.

The January issue of The American Federationist was given over entirely to the Sixth Convention of the AFL-CIO. In this issue, "The First 10 Years" were reviewed in the form of AFL-CIO President George Meany's keynote address to the December convention in San Francisco.

The labor movement's policies and programs also were presented in the January edition in two other sections, "The Issues Today" and "The Challenges Tomorrow."

Twice during the year, the Federationist singled out major problem areas in American life.

In April, the magazine examined the world of poverty, with its 50 million inhabitants, 22 million of them children. In labor's view, poverty is the nation's No. 1 domestic problem.

In November, the Federationist focused on equal rights. The entire issue was devoted to showing what has been done and what remains to be done to bring America's minorities to full equality.

During the course of the year, the magazine offered articles on problems facing labor and the nation: on organizing, on the profits boom and inflation, on politics and on collective bargaining problems.

So ended 1966, a year in which the nation seemed to be taking the measure of its many problems and finding them formidable, indeed.

HOW TO USE INDEX

In master index, articles are listed alphabetically by title and are numbered consecutively. The cross-indexes facilitate the finding of an article by subject or by author.

Example: Economy, National 10, 11, 25, 27, 35, 47

These numbers in the master index will yield the title, page and month for each article on the national economy. Thus No. 10 provides the information: "The Economy I: The Dangerous Capital Goods Boom," by Nathaniel Goldfinger, Page 1, May issue.
